SYNOPSIS:

Hebrews is unlike many of the other New Testament letters. In many ways, it reads like a sermon. It is an encouragement for the church to continue in their faith. Many were returning to old practices and traditions. The writer wants to remind the readers that Jesus Christ, the Messiah, is greater than anything. They were facing persecution and had grown less attentive to Christian teachings. Some had even become lax on gathering together. This letter stresses the importance of keeping the faith.
